WASEL — F5 — Product Aliases & Place Vocabulary

Reference sheet · Tunisian seller context · editable vocabulary

Purpose. Keep product naming and location language consistent across order messages and evaluation examples. The locked hero product remains casque bluetooth.

How to use. Treat the canonical product label as the normalized name. Aliases are candidate variants for matching, not proof that two products are identical. If a phrase is ambiguous, ask for clarification rather than silently changing the product.

The place vocabulary is illustrative. Local names and spelling vary; use the customer's own place name when available.

Source alignment: F5 calls for product aliases and place vocabulary. The hero product name is preserved as specified in the FEDI work plan.

1. Product aliases

Canonical label: casque bluetooth

Type	Arabizi / Latin	Tunisian Arabic	French
Canonical product	casque bluetooth	سماعات بلوتوث	casque Bluetooth
Common short form	casque	سماعات	casque
Common generic form	ecouteurs bluetooth	سماعات بلوتوث / إيربودز	écouteurs Bluetooth
Common spelling variant	casque bluetooth	كاسك بلوتوث	casque Bluetooth
Potentially ambiguous term	kit mains libres	كيت مان ليبر	kit mains libres

Normalization cautions

• Keep “casque bluetooth” as the hero product label.

• Do not automatically equate “casque”, “écouteurs”, and “kit mains libres” when the distinction affects the order.

• Preserve the customer's original wording in the raw conversation; store any normalized label separately.

2. Place vocabulary

Use these terms to recognize common location descriptions. They are vocabulary aids, not a substitute for a complete deliverable address.

3. Address-level reminders

City only: a city or town name without a more specific location.

Area / landmark: a neighborhood, district, or recognizable landmark, but no street-level detail.

Street + landmark: street/road name plus a landmark; no house number.

Exact address: should include a street/road and a house number or a clearly identified building, with useful location context.

Do not mistake Arabizi digits inside words (for example, 9rib or 7dha) for an address number. A number used as a house number is address information; a digit embedded in a transliterated word is not.

Review checklist

☐ Hero product remains “casque bluetooth”.

☐ Customer wording is preserved in raw examples.

☐ Ambiguous aliases are not treated as exact matches without context.

☐ Place names are not invented as customer facts.

☐ Address completeness is labeled from the information actually provided.
